What Is the KCCUA?

The KCCUA is a region comprising 17 municipalities* in central Fukushima Prefecture. Under the slogan of “Sharing, Growing, and Helping Each Other,” the region is working to build an urban area that is resilient to climate change, where all generations live healthily. Through initiatives such as disaster preparedness and efforts to extend healthy life expectancy, the region aims to ensure that everyone can continue living comfortably and happily.

What Are the SDGs?

Adopted by the United Nations in September 2015, the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are comprehensive objectives comprising 17 goals and 169 targets to be achieved by 2030 as well as guidelines for evaluating progress toward these goals, with the aim of “realizing a sustainable world” based on the principle that “no one is left behind.”

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

An R&D Cluster That Capitalizes on the Region's Accessibility

The KCCUA is located in the center of Fukushima and is connected to the Tohoku Expressway and Ban'etsu Expressway. The Tohoku Shinkansen, Tohoku Line, Ban'etsu East Line, and Ban'etsu West Line that also run through the KCCUA, as well as Fukushima Airport, allow for quick and convenient travel to Tokyo and other parts of the country.

Because of its accessibility, the KCCUA is home to many companies, cutting-edge research institutions, and industrial support organizations, leading to a well-developed R&D cluster.

Point 3

A strong industrial cluster that drives economic growth and development

During the early Meiji era (1868-1912) the Asaka Canal was constructed in Koriyama, providing access to a large amount of electricity from hydroelectric power generation. This electricity was shared with textile and chemical factories, leading to massive industrial growth.

Now the second largest industrial cluster in Tohoku, the KCCUA is home to many private manufacturing, wholesale, and retail companies. These companies are aided by the many research institutions and support organizations in the area, and the municipalities are working together on various initiatives to revitalize the area even further.

A Safe and Healthy Environment to Support Childrearing

Many local parenting and family support centers have been created within the KCCUA, and they provide places where parents, guardians, and families can socialize, consult with experts about problems and concerns regarding parenting, and receive various kinds of support. In this way, residents can raise their children with peace of mind while working.

Discussion with people who moved here

What We Discovered After Moving Here! All About the KCCUA

Let's ask residents who chose the KCCUA as their new home what they find appealing about it.

Participants

Manami Nakayama

(born in Tokyo). After serving as a Local Vitalization Cooperator, she now runs the traditional Japanese house facility “Nononowa” in Tamura.

Hiroaki Kanno

(born in Kawamata, Fukushima Prefecture). After working as an EMS paramedic for the Tokyo Fire Department, he relocated with his family to Motomiya.

Tokiaki Narui

(born in Tochigi Prefecture). He moved to Ono in January 2024 as a Local Vitalization Cooperator.

Yui Namioka

(born in Aomori Prefecture). She moved to Bandai in April 2024 as a Local Vitalization Cooperator.

Tsukasa Takehara

(born in Tokyo). He moved to Ishikawa in October 2022 as a Local Vitalization Cooperator.

Sho Hoshi

(born in Tokyo). After visiting Ten'ei while researching satoyama (traditional woodland landscapes) for a museum in Tokyo, he later relocated there.

What are the charms of the area?

One of the attractions of the KCCUA is its excellent transportation convenience and the rich nature close at hand. What aspects of nature do you find appealing?

Nakayama I started keeping Japanese honeybees, which are rare, on my property in Tamura. Bees are vital partners that support crop pollination. As for wildlife, there are many creatures that are rarely seen these days, such as water scorpions, diving beetles, loaches, and giant dragonflies.

Takehara I also had the opportunity to help create a biotope in terraced rice fields during elementary school classes. In Ishikawa, there is an annual Firefly Festival in June, and this project aims to increase populations of Genji and Heike fireflies for that event. Firefly numbers declined significantly once, but through activities over the past two years, they have gradually increased, and the environment is slowly recovering.

Hoshi I moved here after coming to the Yumoto area of Ten'ei for plant research. Because of that, I feel the true value of this area lies in its rich natural environment, including its plant life. The Yumoto area also has terraced rice fields where rare plants are still alive.

How about the environment for raising children?

Kanno I really appreciate the support of many people, including staff at the city hall. In Motomiya, there are various extracurricular activities available. My older child occasionally joins practice with the local basketball team, and I'm considering enrolling my younger child in a dance school.

Hoshi Our situation was completely different from Motomiya. When my son attended Yumoto Elementary School, there were only two students in the entire school at the time. I was worried because I had attended a large elementary school in an urban area, but the classes were essentially one-on-one, and the teachers were incredibly patient. In the end, I think it was a good situation. Children in Yumoto are not intimidated by adults at all. At school, there are more teachers than students, and when they go home, they grow up in an environment where everyone in the neighborhood knows one another. So, they have no fear of interacting with adults. It depends on the child's personality, of course, but I'm glad my child attended there.

Any gaps between your expectations and reality?

Were there any surprises after moving, or any gaps between your expectations and reality?

Namioka I was born in Aomori Prefecture, got a job in Miyagi Prefecture, and now live in Bandai. Since I have always lived in the Tohoku region, there wasn't a huge cultural gap. However, I had always lived by the sea before, so moving to mountainous Bandai made me notice differences in people's temperaments. The sense of community is strong, and I felt a bit isolated at first.

Narui People in Ono also seemed a bit curt in their greetings until I had settled in. This went on for a while, and just when I started wondering whether I could really make it here, they suddenly began chatting with me about all sorts of things. But I think that can happen anywhere when you move somewhere new.

Takehara When I first moved here, people often asked me my last name. When I answered, they would say, “You’re not originally from Ishikawa, are you?” I wondered how they knew. Later, I was surprised to learn that just by hearing a surname, people can tell which village area within the town someone is from.

Hoshi After moving to Ten’ei, I married a local woman and took the surname Hoshi. In the Yumoto area where I live, about 80% of the people have the surname Hoshi. So, if you call out “Hoshi-san,” everyone turns around (laughs). Even outside the family, we call each other by our first names.

Nakayama Even though Tokyo has more people, I find myself more conscious of others here than I was in Tokyo. People say things like, “I saw you at that place yesterday!” when I wasn’t even aware. Now, even for a quick outing, I think, “I should change clothes” (laughs).

Kanno The biggest difference I feel compared to city life is how I spend time. When I lived in the city, I could watch videos on my smartphone during my train commute, but since switching to commuting by car, I can't do that anymore.

Namioka Speaking of time management, since Bandai gets a lot of snow, I sometimes wish I could use the time spent shoveling snow in winter for something else.

Narui Time flows more slowly here, but there might actually be more to do in the countryside.

Trust in community is something they earn over time.

Is there anything you consciously do to be accepted by the local community?

Takehara If there is an event in town, I try to stop by, even if it's only for 10 minutes. In Ishikawa, the morning market runs every Saturday from May to November, and I've attended consistently since moving here. At first, people saw me and said, “He’s the guy who came to our town through the Local Vitalization Cooperator program.” But gradually, “the guy” became “Takehara-san,” and now people even ask me for advice. I realized that trust isn’t something you gain instantly; it takes time.

Hoshi Showing up for community work in the village is important, too.

What can newcomers do?

Takehara I think locals often don’t realize how great their own area is. In Ishikawa, for example, we have good ingredients year-round, hot springs, easy access to most places in the prefecture, and not much snow. People say the bedrock is solid, which makes the area more resistant to earthquakes. I always tell townspeople, “There’s no place more livable and wonderful than Ishikawa,” but they all say, “Nah, it’s nothing special.” I’ve been having that conversation ever since I moved here (laughs). Recently, more people have finally started saying, “If you keep saying so, maybe we should try promoting it.”

Hoshi What I find most appealing in the Yumoto area is the autumn foliage. There are many oak trees, and the entire mountain turns a magnificent orange. I often see passing cars stopping to take photos.

Love your town.
Newcomers can help
locals do so.

Namioka Bandai has 25 hamlets. I once visited all of them to hold discussion sessions. I planned to have each hamlet list its unique charms, but over half of them just replied, “Well, you know … there’s nothing.” (laughs). But you can drive to Aizuwakamatsu, Kitakata, or Inawashiro in about 30 minutes. We have supermarkets, convenience stores, and hospitals right here. The town office is also doing many progressive things. I always think people should be prouder of these.

Narui They seem shy about saying, “I love my hometown”—it feels a bit embarrassing. Creating opportunities for people to proudly say, “This is my hometown!” might be one role for newcomers.

Namioka When I first moved here, I thought, “Fukushima Prefecture is an ordinary prefecture—nothing particularly good or bad.” But precisely because of that, it felt like a place without strong preconceptions, almost like a blank slate. That’s why I thought it might be a place where people aren’t bound by fixed images and can more easily find their own way of living.

What do you want to do next?

How do you imagine living in the KCCUA going forward?

Namioka I still have time left in my term as a Local Vitalization Cooperator. Bandai has many young migrants, and both the mayor and town hall staff enjoy having fun. So I want to engage with the town in a sustainable way, centered on what I find enjoyable and interesting.

Narui As a Local Vitalization Cooperator, I also want my activities to make people feel glad they had me here. I will work hard during my remaining term to connect those activities with what I personally want to do.

Nakayama I want to focus on natural cycles and make natural resources more appealing. It would be great if that could lead to efforts to increase the number of people connected to the area.

Hoshi I have always believed that revitalizing a community is about revitalizing ourselves.

“Community revitalization” can sound vague, but I think that if we keep doing what we find interesting, we naturally gain more local friends. So, if someone is thinking of coming to the countryside to do something, I want them to go all in on what they want to do and enjoy life.

Takehara I was the first Ishikawa Local Vitalization Cooperator. I hope to use that experience to create a network for people who will move to Ishikawa in the future.

Kanno I currently work as an emergency medical technician at a private hospital. I want to contribute to the community by sharing my experience in emergency medicine through social media, providing knowledge about local disaster preparedness and emergency care. I also hope to promote the region’s appeal, potentially inspiring newcomers to choose the KCCUA.

“SDGs Future City” Koriyama

In 2019, the Cabinet Office selected Koriyama as an “SDGs Future City” in recognition of the local government’s efforts toward achieving the SDGs. With the aim of realizing a “Healthy Urban Area for All Generations,” Koriyama is striving to create a community that ensures the well-being* of residents, leaving no one behind. Koriyama ranked first in the Fukushima “SDGs Promotion Survey” (Nikkei Inc., 2025).

*Being in good physical, mental, and social condition. A concept that includes not only short-term happiness, but also sustainable happiness into the future, such as a sense of purpose and meaning in life.

One of Tohoku's top commercial and industrial cities.

Koriyama is the largest commercial center in the prefecture and the second largest in Tohoku. Only 76 minutes from Tokyo by Shinkansen, the city is thriving as a place where people, goods, and knowledge gather.

Koriyama's development as a commercial center began in the Meiji era (1869–1912) when the construction of the Asaka Canal stimulated agricultural production and provided the area with electricity, which spurred industrial development. The city celebrated the 100th anniversary of its municipal status in 2024.

Koriyama is also known as the “City of Music” because of its many musical activities.

My love, Sukagawa

Sukagawa is the birthplace of Eiji Tsuburaya, also known as the “God of Tokusatsu” (literally, God of Special Effects) The city proactively preserves the special effects filmmaking he pioneered as part of the local culture, while fostering civic pride in this unique heritage.

Monuments of Ultraman heroes line the street from the station to the city center.

Famous for street lined with Ultraman heroes

Located in the heart of Fukushima's Nakadori region, Sukagawa—together with Tamakawa—is home to Fukushima Airport, serving as a “gateway to the skies.” The city is officially the sister city of the Land of Light in the M78 Nebula, the home of Ultraman. Along the streets, monuments to Ultraman heroes and monsters welcome visitors.

Sukagawa is also a green city, home to the National Place of Scenic Beauty “Sukagawa Peony Garden,” as well as Midorigaoka Park and the Shakadogawa River. The city is also lively with events such as the Torch Festival, which represents over 430 years of tradition. There is also the regular market “Rojima,” which is held in the narrow alleys of Sukagawa's old shopping district.

A city for sightseeing with a rich cultural atmosphere

A city for sightseeing with a rich cultural atmosphere Nihonmatsu is surrounded by abundant nature and is a treasure trove of local sake, brewed from pure water and fine rice. During the Edo period, it flourished as a castle town of the Niwa Clan with a fief of 100,000 koku (a traditional unit used to measure rice yield), giving the city its rich historical and cultural heritage. At the foot of Mount Adatarara, where the “real sky” spreads forth as described in the Chieko Poems, you’ll also find popular attractions such as Dake Onsen.

Standing 1,700 meters tall, Mount Adatarara is beloved by hikers and is counted among Japan’s 100 Famous Mountains.

The Nihonmatsu Lantern Festival, one of Japan’s Three Great Lantern Festivals, is another highlight. The sight of seven huge floats, each over 11 meters tall and adorned with 300 lanterns, parading through the streets to lively festival music is truly spectacular.

A castle town representing Fukushima, featuring both highlands and local mountains

Nihonmatsu is a regional city located in the northern part of Nakadori in Fukushima and has a population of 49,669 (as of November 01, 2025).

The Nihonmatsu Castle Ruins, which were selected as one of Japan's 100 Great Castles, are located in the city center.

To the west lies a hot-spring and highland area, including Dake Onsen.

To the east is a scenic mountain region that is known as one of Fukushima's leading areas for organic agriculture.

The city is also famous for the traditional Nihonmatsu Lantern Festival, which has continued since the early Edo period (Kan'ei 20), as well as the Nihonmatsu Chrysanthemum Dolls, one of Japan's largest chrysanthemum festivals. In addition, thanks to high-quality groundwater from Mount Adatarata, Nihonmatsu is renowned as a sake-producing region with four local breweries.

1. Chrysanthemum dolls add vivid color to autumn in Nihonmatsu. The venue at Kasumigajo Park is filled with vibrant chrysanthemum displays.
2. Dake Onsen, a long-established hot spring resort at the foot of Mount Adatarata.

A unique city aiming to become an “Insect Sanctuary”

Blessed with scenic mountain landscapes, Tamura is home to a rich variety of insects, including rhinoceros beetles.

In July 2023, Tamura launched the Insect Sanctuary Council in collaboration with other municipalities, with the goal of co-creating a sustainable society where diverse insect species can thrive.

In the Tokiwa area, Mushi Mushi Land displays over 100 types of insect specimens from around the world, including the impressive Hercules beetle.

Proactively supporting new residents who want to start businesses

Tamura is located in the heart of the Abukuma Highlands. Formed in 2005 through the merger of five towns and villages, the city offers the flexibility to choose where to live according to each person's lifestyle.

Conveniently situated near Koriyama, the region's core city, and the Hamadori region facing the Pacific Ocean, Tamura is about 30 to 40 minutes away from Koriyama by car.

The city has an inland climate with large seasonal temperature differences and relatively low rainfall and snowfall. Even before the Great East Japan Earthquake, Tamura attracted many newcomers, and in recent years it has actively welcomed migrants, particularly those aiming to launch their own businesses.

A Great Countryside village—small, yet full of charm

The symbol of Otama is Mount Adatarara, which is counted among Japan's 100 Famous Mountains. At its gently spreading foothills, rice cultivation, vegetable farming, fruit growing, and livestock farming all thrive.

Through delicious seasonal foods and relaxing hot springs, Otama proudly shares its unique lifestyle and promotes itself as a great countryside village—rich in nature, warmth, and local appeal.

A peaceful rural landscape unfolds at the foot of Mount Adatarara.

A nature-rich village with outstanding convenience —a great place to live

Otama is located between Nihonmatsu and Koriyama, on a fan-shaped plain stretching out at the foot of Mount Adatarata, with the Abukuma River flowing to the east.

Despite nationwide population decline, the 2020 National Census showed that Otama had the highest population growth rate in Fukushima compared with 5 years earlier—marking 45 consecutive years of growth. The village also has the highest proportion of residents aged 14 years or younger in the prefecture.

With major nearby cities such as Koriyama and Fukushima within commuting distance, Otama offers excellent everyday convenience while preserving its beautiful countryside. Villagers take deep pride in the rural landscapes at the foot of Mount Adatarata and the area's rich natural environment.

Introducing digital tools for a richer life

Bandai aims to create an inclusive society where everyone can be their true selves. To achieve this mission, the town is promoting digital transformation and public-private co-creation projects.

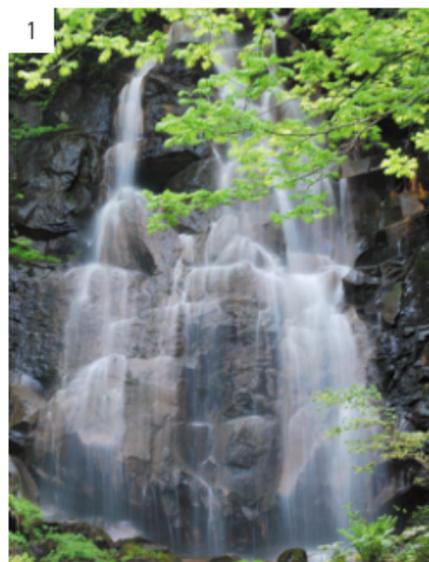

Bandai's vision is to build “an attractive community that our children and grandchildren will want to continue living in.” This bold effort—led by a small town of just over 3,000 residents—has only just begun.

Bandai Nandemo Exchange Hub: Undiscovered Everyday is a unique facility housed in a formerly vacant 50-year-old house that was renovated using do-it-yourself (DIY) techniques. It includes a consultation desk for vacant homes and relocation/settlement support, along with a coworking space and a DIY workspace open to both residents and visitors alike. Serving people with many different purposes, it is a place where anyone can imagine and shape their future daily life in Bandai.

A town proud of its tourism, agriculture, and manufacturing —enjoy outdoor activities on Mount Bandai Bandai offers a wide range of outdoor activities, including hiking and skiing, that make full use of the natural beauty of Mount Bandai, one of Fukushima's most iconic peaks. Visitors can stay at Bandaisan Onsen Hotel and Nekoma Mountain, both of which are operated by Hoshino Resorts. Agriculture in the area centers on rice cultivation, while the production of spinach and sweet potatoes is also thriving. In addition, two popular sake breweries produce exceptional sake, using the region's renowned spring water and locally grown rice. Bandai is also home to the Aizu Factory of Sigma, a world-famous camera lens manufacturer.

2. The restored Kondo Hall at the historic site of Enichiji Temple, known as the birthplace of Aizu Buddhist culture.
3. The Aizu Akae Higan Jishi Dance, performed in front of homes to pray for a bountiful harvest, is a folk tradition that welcomes the arrival of spring in the Aizu region.

Experience the grandeur of nature through dramatic volcanic landscapes and countless lakes and marshes

Inawashiro is located in Bandai-Asahi National Park, Japan's second-largest national park by land area. The area around Mount Bandai and Lake Inawashiroko captivates visitors with its dramatic volcanic scenery, along with the rich beauty of forests, lakes, and wetlands that change with the seasons.

Located south of Mount Bandai, Lake Inawashiroko is one of Fukushima's most popular lakeside resort areas, attracting many visitors during the summer.

Seen from the summit of Mount Bandai, Lake Inawashiroko offers a breathtaking sense of scale and grandeur. The lake also serves as a wintering ground for swans and supports a valuable ecosystem.

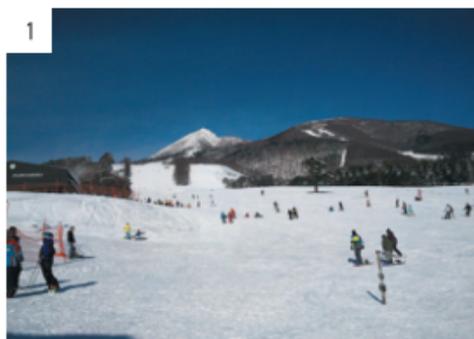

Inawashiro is home to three active volcanoes—Mount Bandai, Mount Adatara, and Mount Azuma—and is known as a hot spring area with an abundant supply of natural geothermal sources. The spring at Numajiri Motoyu boasts one of Japan's highest natural flow rates, at 13,400 liters per minute.

A major resort area in the Aizu region, offering year-round outdoor fun

Inawashiro lies along the northern shore of Lake Inawashiroko, surrounded by famous peaks such as Mount Bandai and Mount Adatara. The town's climate is affected by its proximity to the Sea of Japan, with an average annual snowfall of 1 to 2 meters.

In the summer, visitors can enjoy hiking in the mountains and swimming in the lake, while winter brings skiing and a wide range of snow activities. At the foot of Mount Bandai, expansive rural landscapes spread out, and local specialties include buckwheat, rice, and tomatoes.

The area is also known as the birthplace of the world-renowned scholar Dr. Hideyo Noguchi.

1. Inawashiro Ski Resort offers a wide variety of slopes—from steep runs with a maximum gradient of 42 degrees for advanced skiers, to the 200-meter Central Slope, where beginners can ski with confidence. Enjoy snow sports surrounded by magnificent nature.
2. Tenkyodai (Showa no Mori) is a spectacular viewpoint with panoramic views of Lake Inawashiroko. The walking trails, which are open from spring through autumn, offer a chance to experience the changing seasons up close.
3. Banreikai Soba School serves handmade soba noodles made with 100% locally grown Inawashiro buckwheat flour, and also offers hands-on soba-making experiences.
4. Noguchi Hideyo Memorial Infectious Disease Museum (opened July 2, 2022) introduces the history of infectious diseases from the past to the present.

Enjoy a modern lifestyle that fits you

Home to Fukushima Airport, Tamakawa is known as Fukushima's "gateway to the skies." In addition to the airport, the village offers excellent transportation access with two highway interchanges and two stations on the JR Suigun Line.

Tamakawa provides a well-balanced environment for learning, living, work and recreation, supporting diverse modern work styles and a lifestyle that suits each individual.

The Sugama Plaza Exchange Center makes use of the former Sugama Junior High School building. While preserving the school's nostalgic atmosphere and the warmth of its wood interior, the facility offers office and coworking spaces designed for comfortable communication and strong security. It is popular for its relaxed and welcoming environment.

The Tamakawa tourism exchange facility Forest Station Yodge was renovated from the former Sugama Elementary School Yotsuji Branch, a wooden school building. Surrounded by rich nature, it serves as a tourism and community hub, offering a wide variety of hands-on programs and activities.

A village where you can enjoy cycling and canoeing

Located about two hours from central Tokyo by car or train, this compact village has a population of approximately 6,000 (as of July 2024). Known as “Japan’s most bicycle-loving village,” Tamakawa offers a range of cycling routes and hands-on experiences, including canoeing on the majestic Abukuma River.

Delicious local foods are another highlight—especially the village’s signature superfruit, the hardy kiwi known as sarunashi.

Asakawa

A town that has carried on the tradition of fireworks for over 200 years

▲The highlight of the Asakawa Fireworks held on August 16 is "Jiraika", a unique specialty of Asakawa that is rarely seen elsewhere.

Asakawa Town Mascot
Asamaru

Contents

Fireworks that fill residents with pride bring excitement to the town

Asakawa is the home of fireworks. Fireworks events are held four times a year, once in each season, and fireworks are also a familiar part of everyday life for local residents.

For example, some tempura restaurants offer special menus inspired by fireworks, and the sheer variety of these dishes shows just how deeply the people of Asakawa love fireworks. In Asakawa, fireworks connect the community—this is the spirit of the town.

A popular local dish is Nana-shaku Ball, a tempura rice bowl topped with two huge shrimp. Created to celebrate the town's Asakawa Fireworks, it is served at a local restaurant. Other menu items also incorporate fireworks themes, with names such as "Oh Jiraika" and "Jinari."

In the past, people would hang spent fireworks shells under the eaves of their homes to ward off evil spirits. By attaching copies of old documents to these shells, they created "Evil-Warding Fireworks." A smaller version, called "Mini Mayoike Hanabi," can be purchased at the Asakawa Chamber of Commerce.

Seasonal views from Shiroyama overlooking the town are another highlight Asakawa is a small town located in the southern part of Nakadori, Fukushima Prefecture. Surrounded by the mountains of the Abukuma Highlands, the town offers beautiful scenery throughout the year.

In the town center, Shiroyama Park provides sweeping seasonal views of rice fields spreading across the river plains. A fireworks tradition that began as a memorial for victims of a farmers' uprising has continued for over 200 years, and today it stands as one of Asakawa's signature tourist attractions.

Access is convenient via the JR Suigun Line, with Koriyama Station reachable in about one hour.

1. Kanshu-ji Temple houses Fukushima Prefecture's only—and one of Japan's rarest—mummified monk statues: "Kochi Hoin Yutei."
2. Panoramic view from Shiroyama Park.
3. Dr. Tomizo Yoshida, a world-renowned medical researcher and pioneer in cancer studies, was born in Asakawa. The Tomizo Yoshida Memorial Museum was established to preserve his legacy for future generations.

Furudono: Forest town, forestry town

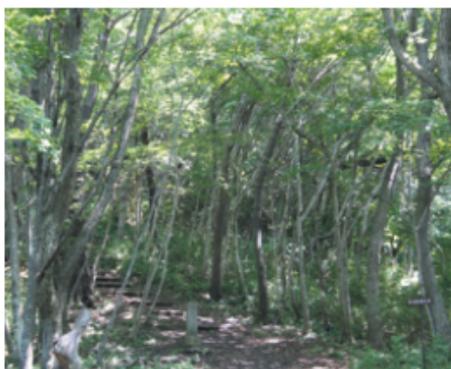

Forests cover around 80% of Furudono, and most are planted forests. Historically, these forests provided firewood and charcoal, but today the town is known for producing cedar lumber.

Although forestry remains an important industry, Furudono also makes full use of its forest environment by developing walking trails and campgrounds. These outdoor facilities attract many visitors from outside the town.

In recent years, Furudono has also expanded opportunities for people to connect with its forests through hands-on activities such as woodworking experiences, firewood splitting, and forest bathing in the planted forest.

Kudeju are slender wooden boards made from unused parts of cedar timber produced in Furudono. Their flexibility allows for a wide range of shapes and uses, limited only by the creativity of the woodworker. They are also offered as return gifts through Furudono's hometown tax donation program.

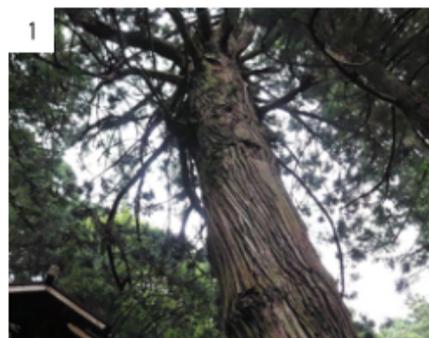

Standing at 669 meters, Mount Kamakuradake is the symbol of Furudono. With three hiking routes available, visitors can choose a trail based on their fitness level and aim. Each course offers varied scenery and the beauty of the changing seasons.

A town that draws visitors for spring cherry blossoms and autumn yabusame horseback archery

Furudono is a mountainous town in southern Fukushima with a population of 4,394 (as of November 30, 2025). Located along an old highway route, it is about one hour by car from Iwaki, Koriyama, and Shirakawa.

The Koshidai Cherry Tree is a giant yamazakura (mountain cherry), one of Fukushima's famous late-blooming cherry blossoms. In autumn, many travelers visit Furudono to witness the 800-year-old yabusame horseback archery event at Furudono Hachiman Shrine—an iconic tradition that is said to have inspired the town's name. Furudono is also known for its delicious local specialties, including sake, miso, and konnyaku.

Becoming a town of cherry blossoms, castles, and outdoor adventures

Miharu is a beautiful castle town where cherry blossoms bloom magnificently across the town each spring. To make its rich history and natural surroundings even more enjoyable for visitors, Outdoor Village Miharu was opened in 2025 on the shores of Lake Sakura, offering outdoor experiences such as camping and kayaking. This new initiative is helping to revitalize the town.

Miharu is now promoting experiential tourism by making full use of its natural resources and the open fields around Lake Sakura (right). Centered on Outdoor Village Miharu (left), this project aims to create welcoming spaces where visitors can easily enjoy and experience outdoor activities.

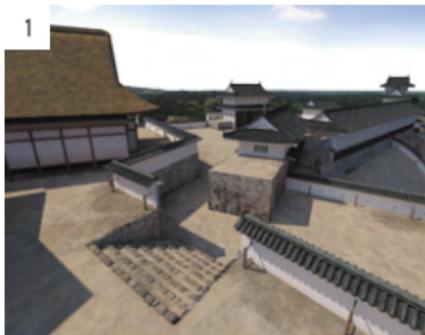

A town with historical charm and excellent accessibility

Located on the western edge of the Abukuma Highlands and surrounded by mountains, Miharu is home to the Miharu Taki-zakura, one of Japan's Three Great Cherry Trees, which attracts many visitors each spring.

With Koriyama only about 30 minutes away by car, Miharu is also a popular commuter town. Access to both the Aizu and Iwaki areas is convenient via the Ban-etsu Expressway.

While Miharu remains a historic castle town, the number of stylish cafes—especially those popular with young people—has also been increasing in recent years.

Green views, perfect for a lifestyle devoted to your hobbies

Ono is a green town, selected as one of “Fukushima’s 100 Green Views” thanks to its outstanding natural environment. Within this rich setting, the town’s “Midori tono Fureai Park” is a popular destination.

The park features the log cabin-style house called “Fureai no Mori House” and the uniquely designed “Forest Gymnasium”, both of which serve as local symbols. Visitors can enjoy a wide variety of activities, including camping at the powered auto campground and hands-on programs such as woodworking experiences.

The administration building, a warm wooden structure, includes spaces for exhibitions and experiential learning.

A nature-rich town with convenient access

Ono is located in the mountains, midway between Koriyama and Iwaki. The town center developed on the flatlands along the Natsui River and its tributaries.

The town is famous for the Natsui Senbonzakura cherry blossoms and the mountain azaleas (Yamatsutsuji) that bloom on Mount Takashiba. Access to the town continues to improve with the opening of the Fukushima Recovery and Revitalization Road toward the Hamadori region, in addition to the Ban-etsu Expressway connecting Koriyama and Iwaki, and the Abukuma Kogen Road providing access to the southern part of the prefecture.

2. Natsui Senbonzakura, Ono Town's signature cherry blossom spot. The reflection of the blossoms on the surface of the Natsui River is especially beautiful.
3. Mount Takashiba, rising 884 meters. In late May, it becomes a breathtaking sight as approximately 30,000 mountain azaleas bloom in brilliant color.

■ Moved from Tokyo to Ono Town

Q What's good about Ono Town?

A Above all, the abundant nature. Rare animals live surprisingly close by.

Q How is life in Ono Town?

A At first, I was surprised by everything when I talked to the local people, but Ono feels more human and enjoyable than Tokyo.
